Current Sociology and International Sociology are the flagship titles from the International Sociological Association. Established in 1952 and 1986 respectively they are some of the oldest and most well-respected journals in the world.

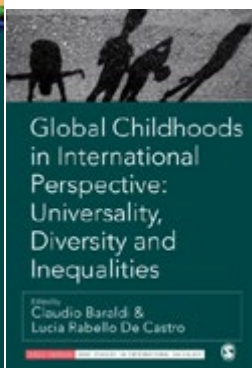

Both are high-ranking, peer-reviewed journals publishing critical international studies in Sociology.

Current Sociology publishes peer-reviewed articles in all areas of sociology - theories, methods, concepts, substantive research, and national/regional developments of interest to sociologists internationally.

International Sociology presents innovative theory and empirical approaches, with attention to insights into the sociological imagination that deserve worldwide attention.

Our Books

The ISA's series SAGE Studies in International Sociology (SSIS), founded in 1974, encourages debates of international significance and maps out future trends of sociological importance.

The SSIS series identifies new areas of scholarship informing the discipline internationally which have global consequences.

Welcome

Welcome address by the President of the International Sociological Association

Sari Hanafi

Dear friends and colleagues, participants of the Forum,

It is an immense pleasure to welcome you, sociologists from all over the world to our Fourth ISA Forum of Sociology originally planned in Porte Alegre, Brazil. Alas, I wish my welcome to be made warmer by the physical encounter. We have long resisted making it a virtual event but the COVID-19 pandemic makes it a “Zoom” meeting.

The Forum’s theme, proposed by Geoffrey Pleyers, ISA Vice-President for Research and Forum President in 2018, was visionary: “Challenges of the 21st Century: Democracy, Environment, Inequalities, Intersectionality.” The assault of authoritarianism and populism in the last few years is without precedent, with the triumph of Trump and numerous mini-Trumps all over the world and this requires us to better think about the process of democratization. Environment is also a most timely topic in an unprecedented global ecological crisis, and most probably the chief reason behind COVID-19. Inequalities are also without precedent, and this was already the case before the pandemic, calling for a thorough analysis using intersectionality and multi-scale approach. This requires not only reconnecting class analysis to race, ethnicity, and sexuality but also linking the economic to the social, and connecting these to the political, and the cultural. Neoliberal and speculative capitalism is not just about economics, it is also a system of power, and a system of culture.

The surreal atmosphere of the COVID-19 pandemic has exposed fault lines in trust among human beings, among countries, between citizens and governments, and is pushing us to raise important questions about ourselves, our social relationships, and life more generally. And this crisis is not just limited to public and environmental health or the economy – what we are witnessing is a moment of truth regarding the crisis of late modernity and its capitalist system on a broad, overarching scale. We will not be able to simply revert to ‘business as usual’ after we get through this crisis, and sociology along all other disciplines should work to both analyze and actively engage in addressing these new realities. COVID-19 is a disease not only of globalization but also of Anthropocene. The creed of human consumerism is depleting resources that our Earth cannot renew, and this virus is but one (albeit significant) episode of this consumerism. Such voracious consumerism is induced by the mythological access to happiness, which ultimately serves as an effective accelerator for more health troubles, epidemics, deaths, and disasters. Sociology should take a serious ethical turn by proposing normative methods, presuppositions, and explicit commitments.

From the abstracts I read by panels' contributors from our 58 Research Committees, Working and Thematic Groups, I am confident that we will witness moments of high intellectual quality, yet without the lively convivial Latino ambiance of the Forum and the city of Porto Alegre.

This Forum wouldn't have been possible without the amazing and patient work of Geoffrey Pleyers, Forum President, the Research Coordinating Committee, the Local Organizing Committee headed by Hermílio Santos, and the ISA Secretariat in Madrid.

Let me give you again my warmest virtual welcome to the Forum and I hope to see you all in person in our next XX ISA World Congress of Sociology in Melbourne (Australia) on July 24-30, 2022.

Sari Hanafi,
President, International Sociological Association

Message de bienvenue de Sari Hanafi de la Présidente de l'Association internationale de Sociologie

Chers amis et collègues, chers participants au Forum,

C'est pour moi un immense plaisir de vous accueillir, sociologues du monde entier, à notre IVe Forum de Sociologie de l'ISA, prévu à l'origine à Porto Alegre, au Brésil. J'aurais souhaité que cet accueil soit rendu plus chaleureux par la rencontre physique ; hélas, la pandémie de Covid-19 nous a finalement obligés à en faire une conférence virtuelle.

Le thème du Forum, « Les défis du XXIe siècle : Démocratie, environnement, inégalités, intersectionnalité », proposé en 2018 par Geoffrey Pleyers, Vice-Président de l'ISA chargé de la Recherche et président du Forum, était visionnaire. Avec la montée en puissance de Trump et d'autres nombreux mini-Trumps dans le monde entier, les assauts autoritaristes et populistes de ces dernières années apparaissent sans précédent, ce qui nous impose une réflexion plus approfondie sur le processus de démocratisation. La question de l'environnement est également un sujet particulièrement d'actualité dans le contexte d'une crise écologique mondiale inédite, et constitue sans doute le facteur principal du Covid-19. Les inégalités sont également sans précédent – c'était déjà le cas avant la pandémie – et nécessitent une analyse approfondie basée sur l'intersectionnalité et une approche multi-échelle. Il s'agit non seulement de relier l'analyse de classe aux questions de la race, l'ethnicité et la sexualité, mais aussi de relier l'économique au social, et ceux-ci au politique et au culturel. Le capitalisme néolibéral et spéculatif n'est pas seulement économique, c'est également un système de pouvoir, et un système culturel.

L'atmosphère surréaliste de la pandémie de Covid-19 a mis à nu des fractures dans la confiance entre les êtres humains, entre les pays, entre citoyens et gouvernements, et nous pousse à soulever d'importantes questions, sur nous-mêmes, sur nos relations sociales et sur la vie en général. Loin de se limiter à des questions de santé publique et environnementale ou d'économie, la crise actuelle constitue un moment de vérité sur la crise de la modernité tardive et de son système capitaliste à une très vaste échelle. Une fois surmontée cette crise, nous ne pourrions pas simplement revenir au business as usual, et la sociologie, comme toutes les autres disciplines, devrait s'attacher à analyser ces nouvelles réalités et s'engager activement à y faire face. Le Covid-19 est une maladie non seulement de la mondialisation, mais aussi de l'anthropocène. Le credo consumériste des êtres humains est en train d'épuiser des ressources que notre Terre ne peut pas renouveler, et ce virus n'est qu'un épisode (certes significatif) de ce consumérisme. Cet appétit vorace de consommation est induit par l'accès mythologique au bonheur, qui au bout du compte favorise l'émergence de davantage de problèmes de santé, d'épidémies, de décès et de catastrophes. La sociologie devrait opérer un sérieux virage éthique en proposant des méthodes normatives, des postulats et des engagements explicites.

D'après les résumés que j'ai pu lire issus des panels de nos 58 comités de recherche, groupes de travail et groupes thématiques, je suis convaincu que nous allons assister à des moments de grande qualité intellectuelle, quoique sans la convivialité latine du Forum et de la ville de Porto Alegre.

Ce Forum n'aurait pas été possible sans le formidable travail et la persévérance du président du Forum Geoffrey Pleyers, du Comité de Coordination de la Recherche, du Comité Local d'Organisation dirigé par Hermílio Santos, et du Secrétariat de l'ISA à Madrid.

Permettez-moi de vous souhaiter à nouveau la plus chaleureuse bienvenue virtuelle au Forum, en espérant vous retrouver en personne à l'occasion de notre prochain Congrès, le XXe Congrès mondial de Sociologie de l'ISA prévu à Melbourne (Australie) du 24 au 30 juillet 2022.

Sari Hanafi,
Présidente de l'Association internationale de Sociologie

Mensaje de de Sari Hanafi de la Presidenta de la Asociación Internacional de Sociología

Estimados colegas y amigos, estimados participantes al Foro:

Es para mí un gran placer darles la bienvenida, a todos ustedes sociólogos y sociólogas de alrededor del mundo, a esta cuarta edición del Foro de Sociología de la ISA originalmente previsto en Porto Alegre, Brasil. Hubiese querido que mi bienvenida fuera más cálida al reunirnos físicamente pero la pandemia de COVID-19 nos obligó finalmente a convertir este Foro en una conferencia virtual.

El tema del Foro, "Desafíos del siglo XXI: Democracia, medio ambiente, desigualdades, interseccionalidad", propuesto en 2018 por Geoffrey Pleyers, Vicepresidente de la ISA para la Investigación y Presidente del Foro, fue visionario. El asalto del autoritarismo y el populismo en los últimos años no tiene precedentes, con el triunfo de Trump y numerosos mini-Trumps en todo el mundo, lo cual nos obliga a reflexionar mejor sobre el proceso de democratización. El medio ambiente es también un tema muy oportuno en el contexto de una crisis ecológica mundial sin precedentes, y constituye muy probablemente la razón principal del COVID-19. Las desigualdades tampoco tienen precedentes, y esto ya era así antes de la pandemia, lo que exige un análisis cuidadoso basado en la interseccionalidad y el enfoque multiescalar. Esto requiere no sólo reconectar el análisis de clases con la raza, la etnicidad y la sexualidad, sino también vincular lo económico con lo social, y conectar estos con lo político y lo cultural. Con el capitalismo neoliberal y especulativo no sólo se trata de economía, sino también de un sistema de poder y un sistema cultural.

La atmósfera surrealista de la pandemia de COVID-19 ha puesto al descubierto fracturas en la confianza entre los seres humanos, entre los países, entre los ciudadanos y sus gobiernos, y nos está impulsando a plantear importantes cuestiones sobre nosotros mismos, sobre nuestras relaciones sociales y sobre la vida en general. Y esta crisis no se limita sólo a la salud pública y ambiental o a la economía: lo que estamos presenciando es un momento de verdad en relación con la crisis de la modernidad tardía y su sistema capitalista en una escala amplia y global. No podremos simplemente volver a "lo de siempre" después de que superemos esta crisis, y la sociología, junto con todas las demás disciplinas, debería trabajar tanto para analizar estas nuevas realidades como para tratar activamente de enfrentarlas. El COVID-19 es una enfermedad no sólo de la globalización sino también del Antropoceno. El credo del consumismo de los humanos está agotando recursos que nuestra Tierra no puede renovar, y este virus no es más que un episodio (aunque significativo) de este consumismo. Tal consumismo voraz es inducido por el acceso mitológico a la felicidad, que en última instancia sirve de acelerador potente para más problemas de salud, epidemias, muertes y desastres. La sociología debería dar un serio giro ético proponiendo métodos normativos, supuestos y compromisos explícitos.

Partiendo de los resúmenes que leí por los colaboradores de los paneles de nuestros 58 comités de investigación, grupos de trabajo y grupos temáticos, confío en que seremos testigos de momentos de alta calidad intelectual, aunque sin el animado ambiente latino del Foro y de la ciudad de Porto Alegre.

Este Foro no habría sido posible sin la impresionante labor y perseverancia del Presidente del Foro Geoffrey Pleyers, el Comité de Coordinación de la Investigación, el Comité Local de Organización encabezado por Hermílio Santos, y la Secretaría de la ISA en Madrid.

Permítanme darles de nuevo mi más cálida bienvenida virtual al Foro y espero verles a todos y todas en persona en nuestro próximo congreso, el XX Congreso Mundial de Sociología de la ISA previsto del 24 al 30 de julio de 2022 en Melbourne, Australia.

Presidenta de la Asociación Internacional de Sociología

Geoffrey Pleyers

Welcoming Note from Geoffrey Pleyers, President of the IV ISA Forum and ISA Vice-President for Research

The global pandemic gives even more importance to the ISA primary mission: gathering social scientists from all over the world to share their research and analyses.

Over the past year, sociologists have played an essential role in dealing with the pandemic and analyzing its impacts. They demonstrated that it is not only a sanitary crisis but also a social, ecological, and political crisis. While the virus may infect any human body, the pandemic exacerbates inequalities, notably in terms of class, race and gender.

Sociologists have explored how the pandemic affects our daily lives, subjectivities and social relationships. COVID-19 has reminded us of our vulnerability as biological, human and social beings. Intergenerational relations have taken on new meanings. Digital technologies have reshaped many realms of our lives, from family to work, including our way of teaching, researching and sharing knowledge. We have also analyzed the crisis as a mirror of the strengths and weaknesses of governments, public policies and political regimes.

Many of us have stressed the need for a world more sensitive to human beings, care, and social inequalities. However, this crisis may pave the way for a new authoritarian era, with biopolitics grounded in new technologies. The way humanity will get out of this pandemic will depend on how social actors, policymakers, economic actors, citizens and social movements deal with this multidimensional crisis and defend their visions of a different world.

The pandemic has stressed how deeply interdependent we have become and accentuated the need of a more global sociology. Opening more spaces for our colleagues from the Global South is fundamental. Epistemologies of the South and intersectional perspectives on democracy, ecology and social justice are more than alternative options for sociology in the 21st century. There are at its core and have deeply transformed it.

This Forum was to take place in Brazil, aiming at strengthening the global dialogue with our Latin American colleagues, whose theoretical, epistemological and analytical contributions are indispensable tools to understand the global challenges we face. The Brazilian Sociological Society (SBS), Latin American Sociological Association (ALAS) and Latin American Council of Social Sciences (CLACSO) have joined us and organized semi-plenary sessions, while the president of the Council for the Development of Social Science Research in Africa (CODESRIA) will join us in the closing session.

This Forum will also feature special panels to pay tribute to three of our most distinguished colleagues. Immanuel Wallerstein will remain as a major global social scientist and presided over the ISA between 1992 and 1996. Erik Olin Wright had shed light on “real utopias” that embody fairer societies. The Brazilian sociologist Marielle Franco was murdered in 2018 and has become a global symbol of the struggle against racist, colonial, hetero-patriarchal dominations and police violence. Her life, research, and activism as a black woman from the favelas show that intersectionality is not a mere theoretical concept. She also exemplifies the need to enlarging the access to universities and studies in sociology to women and men from less privileged backgrounds, beyond the gender, race and social barriers.

Organizing a Forum in the pandemic and moving it online has been a major challenge. I would like to thank each of you for preparing presentations under such difficult circumstances. This Forum would not exist without the dedication and invisible work of the presidents, program coordinators and session organizers of 52 research committees, working groups and thematic groups. They are the vibrant heart of our International Sociological Association.

Geoffrey Pleyers
ISA Vice-President for Research, and IV ISA Forum President

Mots de bienvenue de Geoffrey Pleyers, Président du IVe Forum de l'ISA et Vice-Président de l'ISA pour la Recherche

La pandémie globale que nous traversons depuis un an donne plus d'importance encore à la mission de l'Association internationale de sociologie : réunir des chercheurs en sciences sociales du monde entier pour présenter leurs analyses.

Les sociologues ont joué un rôle essentiel au cours de cette pandémie et dans l'analyse de ses répercussions. Ils ont démontré que la pandémie de Covid-19 était plus qu'une crise sanitaire : c'est aussi une crise sociale, écologique et politique. Si le virus peut infecter tout être humain, la pandémie exacerbe les inégalités, notamment en termes de classe, de race et de genre.

Nous avons également étudié la manière dont la pandémie affecte nos vies, nos subjectivités et nos relations sociales. Le virus nous rappelle notre vulnérabilité en tant qu'êtres biologiques, humains et sociaux. Les relations intergénérationnelles ont pris de nouvelles significations. Les technologies numériques ont remodelé tous les domaines de notre vie, de la famille au travail, y compris notre manière d'enseigner et de mener des recherches. La pandémie a aussi révélé les forces et faiblesses des gouvernements, des politiques publiques et des régimes politiques.

Beaucoup d'entre nous ont souligné la nécessité d'un monde plus humain, plus sensible aux perspectives du soin et aux inégalités sociales. Toutefois, la gestion de la crise pourrait également ouvrir la voie à une nouvelle ère des autoritarismes et de biopolitiques ancrées dans les nouvelles technologies. La façon dont l'humanité sortira de la pandémie dépendra de la manière dont les décideurs politiques, les citoyens, les acteurs économiques et les mouvements sociaux s'emparent aujourd'hui de ces défis historiques.

La pandémie a montré à quel point nous sommes devenus interdépendants, et la nécessité d'une sociologie plus globale. Ouvrir davantage d'espaces à nos collègues du Sud global est fondamental. Les épistémologies du Sud et les perspectives intersectionnelles sur la démocratie, l'écologie et la justice sociale sont plus que des options alternatives pour les sciences sociales du XXIe siècle. Elles en sont le cœur et forment la base d'un profond renouveau.

Ce Forum devait se tenir au Brésil et renforcer le dialogue avec nos collègues latino-américains, dont les contributions théoriques, épistémologiques et analytiques sont indispensables pour comprendre les défis globaux. La Société brésilienne de Sociologie, l'Association latino-américaine de sociologie (ALAS) et le Conseil latino-américain des sciences sociales (CLACSO) ont organisé des sessions semi-plénières pour ce Forum. Nous étendrons la dynamique à d'autres associations régionales, à commencer par le Conseil pour le développement de la recherche en sciences sociales en Afrique (CODESRIA), dont la présidente prendra part à la séance de clôture.

Trois séances de ce Forum nous permettront de rendre hommage à trois de nos plus éminents collègues. Immanuel Wallerstein nous a permis de penser le système-monde et a présidé l'ISA de 1992 à 1996. Erik Olin Wright a montré que les « utopies réelles » incarnent l'espoir d'un monde plus juste. Marielle Franco, sociologue brésilienne assassinée en 2018, est devenue un symbole mondial de la lutte contre la domination raciste, coloniale, hétéro-patriarcale et la violence policière. Son parcours de femme noire des favelas montre que l'intersectionnalité n'est pas qu'un concept théorique. Il souligne également la nécessité d'élargir l'accès aux études en sociologie aux femmes et aux hommes de milieux moins favorisés, au-delà des barrières sociales et raciales.

L'organisation d'un Forum pendant la pandémie et en ligne a représenté un défi considérable pour notre Association. Je remercie chacun d'entre vous pour avoir préparé des présentations dans des circonstances aussi difficiles. Ce Forum n'existerait pas sans le dévouement et le travail largement invisible des présidents, coordinateurs de programme et organisateurs de sessions des comités de recherche, groupes de travail et groupes thématiques qui sont le cœur de notre Association internationale de sociologie. Qu'ils en soient toutes et tous remerciés.

Geoffrey Pleyers
Président du Forum et Vice-Président de l'ISA pour la Recherche

Mensaje de bienvenida de Geoffrey Pleyers, Presidente del IV Foro de la ISA y Vicepresidente de la ISA para la Investigación

La pandemia mundial hace aún más importante la misión principal de la ISA: reunir a científicos sociales de todo el mundo para que compartan sus investigaciones y análisis.

En el último año, los sociólogos han desempeñado un papel esencial a la hora de afrontar la pandemia y analizar sus repercusiones. Han demostrado que no se trata sólo de una crisis sanitaria, sino también de una crisis social, ecológica y política. Aunque el virus puede infectar a cualquier cuerpo humano, la pandemia nos afecta de forma diferente, exacerbando las desigualdades sociales, sobre todo en términos de clase, raza y género.

Los sociólogos han estudiado cómo la pandemia afecta a nuestra vida cotidiana, nuestras subjetividades y nuestras relaciones sociales. El COVID-19 nos ha recordado nuestra vulnerabilidad como seres biológicos, humanos y sociales. Las relaciones intergeneracionales han adquirido nuevos significados. Las tecnologías digitales han reconfigurado muchos ámbitos de nuestra vida, desde la familia hasta el trabajo, pasando por nuestra forma de enseñar, investigar y compartir conocimientos. La pandemia también ha puesto en evidencia los puntos fuertes y débiles de los gobiernos, las políticas públicas y los regímenes políticos.

Muchos hemos insistido en la necesidad de un mundo más sensible a los seres humanos, a los cuidados y a las desigualdades sociales. Sin embargo, esta crisis podría conducir a una nueva era autoritaria, con una biopolítica basada en las nuevas tecnologías. Cómo la humanidad saldrá de esta pandemia dependerá de cómo los responsables políticos, los agentes económicos, los ciudadanos y los movimientos sociales afronten esta crisis multidimensional y defiendan sus visiones del mundo.

La pandemia ha puesto de manifiesto lo profundamente interdependientes que nos hemos vuelto y ha acentuado la necesidad de una sociología más global. Es fundamental abrir más espacios para nuestros colegas del Sur Global. Las epistemologías del Sur y las perspectivas interseccionales sobre la democracia, la ecología y la justicia social son más que opciones alternativas para la sociología del siglo XXI. Conforman su núcleo y la han transformado profundamente.

Este Foro iba a celebrarse en Brasil, con el objetivo de reforzar el diálogo global con nuestros colegas latinoamericanos, cuyas contribuciones teóricas, epistemológicas y analíticas son herramientas indispensables para comprender los desafíos globales de nuestro tiempo. La Sociedad Brasileña de Sociología (SBS), la Asociación Latinoamericana de Sociología (ALAS) y el Consejo Latinoamericano de Ciencias Sociales (CLACSO) han organizado para este Foro sesiones semiplenarias, mientras que la presidenta del Consejo para el Desarrollo de la Investigación en Ciencias Sociales en África (CODESRIA) nos acompañará en la sesión de clausura.

Este Foro también contará con paneles especiales para rendir homenaje a tres de nuestros más distinguidos colegas. Immanuel Wallerstein seguirá siendo uno de los más grandes científicos sociales del mundo y presidió la ISA entre 1992 y 1996. Erik Olin Wright arrojó luz sobre las "utopías reales" que encarnan sociedades más justas. La socióloga brasileña Marielle Franco, asesinada en 2018, se ha convertido en un símbolo mundial de la lucha contra las dominaciones racistas, coloniales, heteropatriarcales y la violencia policial. Su vida, su trabajo y su activismo como mujer negra de las favelas demuestran que la interseccionalidad no es un mero concepto teórico. También ejemplifica la necesidad de ampliar el acceso a las universidades y a los estudios de sociología a mujeres y hombres de entornos menos privilegiados, más allá de las barreras de género, raza y sociales.

Organizar un Foro en plena pandemia y trasladarlo al formato virtual ha sido un gran reto. Me gustaría dar las gracias a cada uno de ustedes por haber preparado las presentaciones en circunstancias tan difíciles. Este Foro no existiría sin la dedicación y el trabajo en gran parte invisible de los presidentes, coordinadores de programas y organizadores de sesiones de 52 comités de investigación, grupos de trabajo y grupos temáticos. Ellos son el corazón vibrante de nuestra Asociación Internacional de Sociología.

Geoffrey Pleyers

Hermílio Santos

Welcoming Note from the Local Organizing Committee in Porto Alegre, headed by Hermílio Santos

Dear colleagues and participants of the Fourth ISA Forum,

Our Fourth ISA Forum of Sociology is coming, and it is with great pleasure that I welcome everyone to share ideas, projects, and findings about the most varied sociological themes and areas. Although the COVID-19 pandemic has compelled us to adapt and even change plans, this event will certainly be a unique opportunity to discuss alternatives and experiences that have allowed us to overcome so many challenges in the past year, and to continue building quality empirical and theoretical knowledge. In times like the ones we are living, this knowledge becomes even more critical.

Porto Alegre and Brazilian sociologists were enthusiastically preparing to receive scholars from around the world during the Fourth ISA Forum. The city is known for its political activism, and its population has been engaged in several important protests for better public transport and environmental policies, against political corruption, and in defense of more democratic governance. Because of the COVID-19 pandemic, unfortunately our meeting in this vibrant town had to be replaced by an online Forum, which for us is, without a doubt, a source of frustration after several years of work and high expectations.

The pandemic has also exposed with more intensity the socioeconomic inequalities in our country, where negationist and irresponsible behaviors of key political actors have subjected the population to constant health and social insecurity. The Forum will be held online, but it is still our expectation that sharing our communities' achievements and conflicts will bring us closer and promote dialogue on necessary political and social changes across the globe.

I once again welcome everyone, my dear colleagues, to the ISA Forum. I am also looking forward to seeing you in person in Australia for the XX ISA World Congress of Sociology, to be held in Melbourne in 2022.

Hermílio Santos,
President of the Local Organizing Committee

Message de bienvenue du Comité Local d'Organisation à Porto Alegre, dirigé par Hermílio Santos

Chers collègues et participants au IVe Forum de l'ISA,

Le IVe Forum de Sociologie de l'ISA approche, et c'est avec grand plaisir que je vous invite tous à partager vos idées, vos projets et vos résultats sur toute une variété de thèmes dans toute une variété de domaines sociologiques. Bien que la pandémie de Covid-19 nous ait contraints à adapter et même changer nos plans, cet événement va certainement être une occasion unique de débattre des alternatives et des expériences qui nous ont permis de surmonter tant de défis au cours de l'année passée, et de continuer à développer des connaissances empiriques et théoriques de qualité. Dans des moments comme celui que nous vivons actuellement, ces connaissances revêtent d'autant plus d'importance.

Porto Alegre et les sociologues brésiliens se préparaient avec enthousiasme à recevoir des collègues du monde entier pour le IVe Forum de l'ISA. La ville est connue pour son activisme politique, et ses habitants ont participé à diverses manifestations d'envergure pour réclamer l'amélioration des transports publics et de la politique environnementale, dénoncer la corruption politique, et promouvoir une gouvernance plus démocratique. En raison de la pandémie de Covid-19, notre rencontre dans cette ville débordante de vitalité a malheureusement dû être remplacée par un Forum en ligne, ce qui pour nous est à l'évidence une source de frustration après plusieurs années de travail et de vifs espoirs.

La pandémie a également exposé avec une intensité accrue les inégalités socioéconomiques dans notre pays, où les comportements négationnistes et irresponsables d'acteurs politiques de premier plan ont soumis la population à une insécurité sanitaire et sociale constante. Quoique ce Forum ait lieu en ligne, nous continuons d'espérer qu'échanger sur les réalisations et les conflits de nos communautés nous rapprochera et favorisera le dialogue sur les changements politiques et sociaux nécessaires dans le monde entier.

Je vous souhaite une fois de plus à tous et à toutes, mes chers collègues, la bienvenue au Forum de l'ISA. Je me réjouis également à la perspective de vous rencontrer en personne en Australie pour le XXe Congrès mondial de Sociologie de l'ISA, qui se tiendra à Melbourne en 2022.

Hermílio Santos
Président du Comité Local d'Organisation

Mensaje de bienvenida del Comité Local de Organización en Porto Alegre, encabezado por Hermílio Santos

Estimados colegas y participantes al IV Foro de la ISA:

Nuestro IV Foro de Sociología de la ISA está por llegar, y es un gran placer para mí invitarles a compartir ideas, proyectos y hallazgos sobre los más variados temas y áreas sociológicas. Aunque la pandemia de COVID-19 nos ha obligado a adaptar e incluso cambiar los planes, este evento será sin duda una oportunidad única para debatir sobre las alternativas y experiencias que nos han permitido superar tantos desafíos en el último año, y seguir desarrollando conocimientos empíricos y teóricos de calidad. En tiempos como los que estamos viviendo, estos conocimientos se vuelven aún más necesarios.

Porto Alegre y los sociólogos brasileños se preparaban con entusiasmo para recibir a académicos de todo el mundo durante el IV Foro de la ISA. La ciudad es conocida por su activismo político, y sus habitantes han participado en varias protestas importantes para reclamar mejores transportes públicos y políticas ambientales, denunciar la corrupción política y promover una gobernanza más democrática. Debido a la pandemia de COVID-19, desafortunadamente tuvimos que sustituir nuestra reunión en esta vibrante ciudad por un Foro en línea; indudablemente un motivo de frustración para nosotros, después de varios años de trabajo y grandes expectativas.

La pandemia también ha expuesto con mayor intensidad las desigualdades socioeconómicas de nuestro país, donde los comportamientos negacionistas e irresponsables de actores políticos destacados han sometido a la población a una constante inseguridad sanitaria y social. El Foro se celebrará en línea, pero seguimos esperando que el hecho de compartir los logros y conflictos de nuestras comunidades nos acerque y promueva el diálogo sobre los cambios políticos y sociales necesarios en todo el mundo.

Una vez más les doy la bienvenida, estimados colegas, al Foro de la ISA. También espero verles en persona en Australia para el XX Congreso Mundial de Sociología de la ISA, que se celebrará en Melbourne en 2022.
